

Week 4 Day 6 – The Intuitive Inspiration that comes from learning something new and being a child of wonder.

As we continue on our theme of childlike wonder and fully embracing our conscious intuitive nature we are asking ourselves to embrace the art of learning something new today! Today, we either actively learn something new or sign up to take a class in something that we have wanted to do for a while. This is living in spirit...our Spirit's Joy!

The act of learning a new skill brings us completely into a childlike and wondrous state of surrender and in-joy living. When we immerse ourselves into developing our new conscious awareness, which is completely connected to spirit and intuition, we assume a life, which never ceases to be in a state of learning, expansion, and growth. We are embracing the role of student in every facet of our life. No matter how much of a teacher we believe ourselves to be... our Spirit's Joy remains in being the Student of Life! We are connected to higher states of learning, which intuitively recognize we do not know everything. Our egos take a back seat, and we know that we do not have the answers.

Our intuitive conscious connection sees everything from a state of formless wonder and inspires us to see everything in new form. Once we understand this, we experience everything as formless and realize that nothing takes form until it is given thought. Thoughts create form. Form begins with thought. So, if we have a thought about something we are actually beginning to think it into our reality. This is how we can know the difference between intuition and thought. Thought is a process of related thoughts that are strung together to form something. Intuition is inspired creation. It inspires us into the effortless motion of wanting to create out of sheer love for life. A desire to be inspired to live our dreams will propel us on our path through creativity and wonder. It is fun! Then we have the inspiration to begin something new and follow along to help it become form. This is our purpose.

A next question could be how can we make intuition a part of our lives so that we recognize the inspired ideas to do something versus the string of ideas created by the mind? Both are a part of creation and both are connected. The mind serves us well when we learn about science and physics or any subject, which teaches how to analyze or calculate results in a particular manner. Being a leader and coming up with a new way to approach life requires inspirational consciousness or In Spirit Consciousness. This is when we let go of our idea of how things should turn out or a limited consciousness and open up to the possibilities of things happening differently and unlimited. How do we get to this level of conscious expansion? Everything that we have been practicing in addition to learning something new!

When we step into the role as student and learn something new, we step into an open part of ourselves willing to be lead guided and directed into seeing life from a different perspective. When we acknowledge that we are a student and allow ourselves to learn a new skill we create new neural pathways. We are opening to new spaces of reality. Learning also allows us to remain childlike in a natural state of awe and wonder. Learning helps us practice being in the moment and keeps us questioning our thoughts and abilities about ourselves. It provides the opportunity to stretch our thoughts and beliefs and help us question our very purpose in life.

This is exactly what we have accomplished these past 4 weeks in this very program! We have stepped into the role of student and decided to expand our self into an unfamiliar area and opening to an elevated intuitive awareness not done completely like this before.

Hopefully, this expanded your consciousness and allowed you to see the world with fresh eyes. As we live in this new state of expansion, we merge into a state of awareness that understands the importance and deep responsibility for our soul growth. Is there something else you are interested in learning? Are there more classes in a subject that interests you? What are you curious about? Entertaining these questions sends a message to our entire existence that you remain open to expanding awareness in every facet of life. Therefore, the opportunities will be unveiled as you pay attention and continue to open to higher states of learning. Maybe you have uncovered a desire to sew, to paint, to work on cars, to become a coach, to learn to play piano, to learn physics. The importance of this is significant. Learning promotes expansion, which allows for more in-spirit moments to completely embrace your existence. It is a win and win again existence. Our current reality is so much more than what we can see with the eyes. We are everything and everything is within us so therefore our learning and expansion is endless.

Remember, with learning comes balance. Once we master a skill then it allows us to give back to form and formlessness with an ability to contribute to thought consciousness in a way that contributes to the elevation of our entire worldly consciousness. We are not forcing thoughts or what we have learned onto others and the universe will provide opportunities to allow us to teach if we remain in awareness of our moment-to-moment existence. Again, this is part of our intuitive existence. We will know when it is right for us to insert what we know and help others along without any threat of judgment, resistance, or attachment to what is happening. In addition, we get to remain as a child marveling at the in-spirit opportunities that come to us to live this amazing life we have created. Our lives take on a whole new perspective and suddenly all the things we used to see as mundane seem to vibrate at a new level that was not there before. It is because we vibrate at an even higher level and since we vibrate higher, we attract more high vibration. The cycle becomes effortless because momentum has built up in a way that propels us forward on our path. This changes everything from a state of 'doing' into a state of 'being'. All we can ever become is greater and more expansive because we are allowing this to happen from a conscious perspective. Life becomes us and we find even the moments that seem discouraging turn into forms of inspiration. We realize the opportunities to shift and transform into higher states of awareness are ever present everywhere. Learning never ceases to exist. Thoughts create form and we form a new reality or "A New Earth", which Eckhart Tolle writes about so eloquently in his book from years ago.

Your job today is to find the next thing you want to learn, and either sign up for a class, or find a free video class, group class, or something inspirational for you to enjoy being. Make the time to actively shift your life so that you remain in conscious awareness of all the amazing things that you have done and create the space for continued expansion to practice your new skills.

Remember to allow yourself the time to keep journaling or audio recording your days. Maybe you will add looking into new classes or hobbies that you are interested in learning as part of your 10 intentions. Maybe this will be part of your evening gratitude list of what you were able to surprisingly come up with as a possibility. It will all fall into place effortlessly and you will intuitively know what is right for you.

Today's Mantra:

I am a student of life.

I am a student of life.

I am a student of life.
